ATTENDS WARDENS' MEETING.

Deputy Game Warden Martin Berg of this city was in Superior last week where he attended a conference of deputy game wardens called by State Game Warden J. W. Stone. There were five game wardens from the northern part of the state in attendance. A plan of work in this portion of Wisconsin was laid out and the best methods of taking care of the work were considered. In speaking to the gathering, Warden Stone said that things in the warden's department are in excellent shape now.
The violations are lessening, due to the good work of the deputies throughout the state. All the time that violations are growing, more lines are being collected by the department. The courts are getting to be very strict with violators of the game laws and each conviction and sentence serves as a warning to other people who might be inclined to violate the law.

TO BOND PLANT.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the White River Power Co. held in this city last Monday evening, it was voted to bond the plant for $100,000.
The Milwaukee Trust Company are the trustees.

The White River Power Co. controls one of the best water powers in the state of Wisconsin. It is located on the White River in Ashland county about six miles south of the city of Ashland. The plant was completed last year and at present the power is running the street railway system and electric light plant in Ashland.
Engineers pronounce the dam one of the most solidly constructed in the United States.

The stockholders are practically Rhinelander people which makes the concern a Rhinelander Enterprise.

NO RACE SUICIDE HERE.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Christian of this city are certainly entitled to recognition from President Roosevelt as supporters of his anti-race suicide theory.
A baby daughter arrived at their home this week, the little one making the fifteenth child, who has blessed their union. This is a family of the good old fashioned kind and may they grow up to be useful men and women.

BASE BALL.

The game last Sunday between Antigo and Rhinelander city teams was exceedingly interesting.

The visiting team had only one hit to the home team's seven and still the score stood five to three in favor of Antigo. Errors cost more sometimes than hits; two by the Rhinelander team gave the visitors four runs. The people often expect too much of an amateur team. The game between the fats and leans illustrates that old players do not accomplish much without practice.
Taking into consideration that base ball is not a business with our boys we think we got good ball. No team expects to always win.

Saturday, July Fourth the Omro ball team will be here. The game will begin at 2:30 at the fair grounds.
The Omro boys play good ball and the home boys are well prepared to put up a good game. Base ball will be an attractive feature of the Fourth of July exercises.

FATS VERSUS LEANS.

The people, who went to the fair grounds to be amused last Saturday were not disappointed. The base ball game between the fats and the leans was a feature of the season.
Some of the "has beens" are now aware that it is easier to tell the regular team how to do it than to do it themselves.

The leans won the first game (five innings) and the fats the second (four innings). We understand this great contest is to call forth another game at a later date. The best thing is that about seventy-five dollars were made to be used for charity.

HORSE THIEF ARRESTED

Enos Loomis Steals Ponies From Indians Near Hazelhurst. Captured After Long Chase.

Sheriff Felix Dolan returned Friday from Tomahawk in charge of Enos Loomis who was arrested last Thursday at Merrill on a charge of horse stealing.

Loomis is a young man twenty years of age. He had been stealing Indian ponies from a settlement of Indians at Goodnow, about eight miles south of Hazelhurst, Oneida county. He had been carrying on his operations for the last six months and when arrested at Merrill admitted to the police that he had stolen six horses and sold them in Tomahawk, Merrill and Wausau. He secured from $13 to $35 apiece for them.

Last Wednesday afternoon Loomis stole two ponies from the Indians and upon discovering their loss the owners gave chase. For over twenty four hours the Indians and Chief Mc-Withee of Tomahawk followed on his trail. Arriving at the Milwaukee railway track the thief turned the horses loose and boarded a south bound freight train for Merrill. The Merrill police were notified, but on arriving in that city he managed to evade the officers. The young man was later discovered in hiding in an old woodshed.

Loomis makes his home at Good-now and at one time was employed in the train service of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co.

Sheriff Dolan informs us that Loomis has expressed a desire to plead guilty and will be taken before Judge W. C. Silverthorn at Wausau.
At present the Judge is not at home and it will probably be several days before the prisoner receives his sentence.

CHARLIE IS BACK.

The many old friends in Rhinelander of Charlie Wilson were pleasantly surprised to note his arrival here from Minneapolis, Sunday morning.
Charlie made this city his home for many years and was proprietor of the Hotel Clifton. While here he acquired considerable reputation as a politician and no democratic ticket was complete without Charlie's name for county clerk. He may be induced to remain here and again be a candidate for this office. Charlie says that no town looks as good to him as Rhinelander, not even Minneapolis.
Mr. Wilson and family intend to leave Minneapolis soon, for Spokane, Wash., where they will make their home. Ray Wilson has been located at Spokane for some time and is engaged in the lumber business there.

ONE HUNDRED CANDIDATES.

S. J. Williams, district deputy for the Woodmen, arrived in the city Friday from Peoria, Ill., where he was in attendance at the head camp convention. He was accompanied by C. W. Grout of Red Cloud, Neb., who is an active worker for the order.
Mr. Williams has organized a class of one hundred candidates here who will become members of Lake Camp 1749 on the evening of July 3rd. This is one of the largest classes to ever join the order at one time in Wisconsin.
The adoption will take place at the Armory and the Merrill degree team will exemplify the secret work.

MANY WHEELS STOLEN

Bold Bicycle Thief Operates in the City, Made Last Haul Sunday.

There is operating in Rhinelander a bicycle thief, who during the last two weeks has relieved three of our citizens of their wheels. On Saturday June 18th, J. W. VanAlstyne lost a valuable wheel which was taken from the porch of his residence on Pelham street. A few days later a bicycle owned by Fred Perron was stolen. Last Sunday, the thief ar-gain made his appearance and discussed a bicycle from J. C. Teal.
The wheel was standing on the porch of the Carnes' home on Pelham St.
Several little girls, who were playing about the yard, noticed the man when he committed the theft. They say that he walked by the house several times in a sneaky manner, and at last made a rush for the porch, grabbed the wheel and rode away. One of the children shouted to the fellow to put the wheel back, but he made her a snarling remark, and was soon out of sight.

The thief is described as being about twenty years of age, attired in a shabby brown suit of clothes and wore a cap. The children say they would easily recognize him. The man is evidently a bold one, as he does all his work during the day time. However, he always awaits his opportunity and selects a time when the streets are practically deserted.

Despite the fact that the police have a fairly good description of the thief, yet they have been unable to locate him. It is thought that he disguises himself and thus avoids detection.

A few hours after Mr. Teal's wheel was stolen, a farmer driving into the city on the Sandy road, reported having passed a man on a wheel, who appeared in a great hurry going toward Bundy. Under-Sheriff Vaughan immediately started in pursuit, but after overtaking the man found him to be a peaceful Rhinelander citizen who was merely out for a pleasure spin.

Mr. Teal's wheel is of Stearns' make, yellow in color and has a 1903 coaster brake, the only one of its kind in the city.

THE OLDEST YET--NEXT.

If there is any one in Rhinelander who has an old newspaper published at the time of the flood, or thereabouts, we would be pleased to hear from him. Two weeks ago we told of Con Lynch's copy of the New York Herald containing an account of Lincoln's assassination and, later of how this sheet was gone one better by a paper owned by Claude Shepard, telling of Washington's funeral. We certainly thought that the limit had been reached but now comes Ed. Wall with a copy of the Maryland Journal-Advertiser, dated August 20th 1773.

This was shortly after Braddock's defeat and when Washington was yet a young man. All news was received by messenger, ship, and stage, and it was often several weeks after the happening of an event before it was given publication. The paper contains many advertisements offering rewards for runaway slaves.

The type used is of old style In which by the s's resembles f's.
This is by far the oldest newspaper which has yet come before our notice.
The paper is a very interesting relic.

RINGLINGS WANT PANTHER.

We understand that the management of Ringling Brothers World's Greatest Shows has offered a reward of one hundred dollars to any one who will capture and ship to the show, alive and in good condition, the big panther that inhabits the woods near Manson. The Ringlings say that this animal did not escape from their menagerie, but they are desirous of securing the beast if possible. The panther has not been seen or heard from for about ten days now and settlers believe that it has left that section.

ENGINE LEAVES TRACK.

A broken rail resulted in the Northwestern switch engine and several box cars leaving the track in the local yards near the water tank, yesterday forenoon. The mishap took work for about an hour and it was necessary to secure the aid of the Soo switch engine in placing the train back on the track.

WITHDRAWS FROM RACE.

I thank all my friends for their encouraging promises of kind support.
Still I discovered that my case was not the office seeking the man. I therefore withdraw from the contest of being a candidate as previously announced.

MARRIED.

At Stevens Point last Tuesday, June 23, Alex Krembs Jr., and Miss Grace Corcoran, both of that city were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Father W.
J. Rice at St. Stephen's church. Following the wedding a breakfast was served at the bride's home, sixty guests being present. It was the intention of the party to give Alex and his bride a rousing "send off" when they took the train for their wedding tour, but in this respect Alex proved too foxy for them. In speaking of the manner in which the young couple made their get-away the Gazette says:

"The groom had chartered two automobiles, in one of which he was driven away from the rear of the house after a pretense of being called away from the table, and the bride after a record-breaking toilet, entered the other, which drove up to the front door. They were taken to Customers where they caught train No. 12 and proceeded on a wedding trip to Chicago and other points below, to be gone a couple of weeks."

Miss Hattie Bauer and Otto Gerhardt, both of Milwaukee, were married recently in that city. The bride is well known in Rhinelander having frequently visited here with her cousins, Mrs. A. F. Euston and Miss Ada Haas.

Miss Mary McDonald of Wausau and Harry Hurd of Merrill were married by Father J. J. Brennan at Wausau, Monday morning. The young couple will make their home at Merrill where the groom holds a position with the Gilkey-Anson Company.

Allice Mobis and Lester Armon both of this city were married at the home of Joseph Polley, Wausau, Sunday, June 14, Rev. A. T. Erickson pastor of the First Baptist church of Wausau, performed the ceremony.

Miss Bessie E. Wines and Wm. M.
Schultz, two North Crandon young people were married by Justice W.
B. LaSalle in this city last Thursday.

CIRCUS TRAIN WRECKED.

The first section of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus train was wrecked in the railroad yards at St. Paul last Thursday. The train was entering the city on the Omaha road and was passing through the yards when it was struck by a Milwaukee road freight train going down grade. The circus train was hit square in the middle. Flat cars in the front of the train were crushed and also one coach in which one hundred men were sleeping. Eight men were seriously hurt and twenty badly bruised. All were workmen. The show was en route from New Richmond, Wisconsin, to Mankato, Minn.
While the circus was exhibiting in Duluth a storm came up and the main tent was struck by a gust of wind, causing it to collapse. A number of people were injured, some seriously.

CELEBRATE AT SUGAR CAMP.

The residents of Robbins have arranged a celebration for July 4th to be held at Sugar Camp Resort. The program will consist of row boat races, breath bark canoe races by the Indians, Indian pony race, sack race, potato race and climbing a greased pole. There will also be a base ball game between the Indians and whites. In the evening a grand display of fireworks will be given, followed by a dance. Several people from this city are arranging to attend this celebration.

ABANDONS FAMILY.

Chief of Police Maurice Straub arrested in this city Monday morning, Thomas Van Dusel, who was wanted by the authorities of Langlade county for wife abandonment. Van Dusel, it is said, left his family at Antigo and ran away with a young woman from that city. Chief Straub had received a description of Van Dusel a few hours previous to making the arrest. The sheriff of Langlade county arrived in the city Monday afternoon and left that evening with his prisoner.

CLEVELAND'S DEATH SHOCK TO COUNTRY

Ex-President Succumbs Unexpectedly, Though He Had Long Been Ill.

Great Democrat, Twice President of the United States, Dies at His Home in Princeton, Aged Seventy-One Years---Sketch of His Career, from Poor Boy to the Highest Elective Office in the World---Famous Venezuelan Message

Princeton, N. J.—Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States, died suddenly Wednesday at his home here.

Mr. Cleveland had been a sufferer from gout and diabetes for more than two years. Early in 1906 he was stricken with an attack of indigestion, the result of diabetes, and for weeks was unable to partake of any except liquid nourishment.

A seizure in the south improved his health considerably, and his sudden demise comes as a complete surprise.

A statement, signed by Dr. Joseph B. Bryant, Dr. George R. Lockwood and Dr. J. M. Cannon, explaining the death of their patient, was given out.

"Mr. Cleveland for many years has suffered from repeated attacks of gastritis, intestinal catarrh, and also has a long-standing organic disease of the heart and kidneys and heart failure complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and edema were the immediate causes of his death."

Then he returned to law. Success was gained by hard, faithful work. He had never been accused of being brilliant, but he was thorough, and gained by conscientious digging the victory that came to others by so-called genius.

In 1881 he was elected mayor of Buffalo, as a Democrat, by a plurality of 3,500. The candidates on the Republican ticket carried the city by 1,600.

After the election Cleveland sent a letter to his brother that he proposed to stand in the relation of an employee to the people of the city. His one aim would be to render faithful service to his employer.

In carrying out this resolution he became known as the "veto mayor."

He also maintained a keen interest in politics. In 1886 he was chairman of the county committee. He had few intimate friends, but was favored by his power of listening of men attracted by his power of leadership. In 1870 he was elected sheriff and filled the office for three years.

of government, but he gave keen attention to the matters brought before him for action. When these seemed not to be for the public good his disapproval was expressed promptly and with the plainest words in his vocabulary. From 12 to 14 hours a day were devoted to the investigation of bills and reports submitted to him for action.

On July 11, 1884, in Chicago, he was nominated to oppose James G. Blaine in the campaign for the presidency. A slender plurality in New York state turned the scales and he became the first Democratic president since the civil war. The second time in his life that he visited Washington was when he went to the capital to take office as president. His bearing on the stand erected for the inaugural revealed his masterful character to the experienced statesmen who sat around him. Stretched before him were more people than he had ever seen assembled for any purpose. They were enthusiastic, but neither their demonstrations nor thought of the grave responsibilities he was about to assume affected him in the slightest degree. He was calm as any man there having nothing at stake. When the time came to speak he advanced to the bar firmly and coolly as a lawyer in court. Deliberately and in a strong voice he delivered his address of 8,000 words, and he shattered all precedents by giving it from memory instead of from manuscript. He declared for the Monroe doctrine, economy, protection of the Indians, security of the freedmen, and for civil service.

Famous Venezuelan Message.

The death of Mr. Cleveland will recall to all the days when he was the most forceful figure in American public life. Nothing which he ever did while president attracted more attention than the famous message he sent to congress in December, 1895, on the subject of Great Britain's controversy with Venezuela over the boundary between the latter country and British Guiana. The foundation for Mr. Cleveland's message was the note of Secretary of State Olney to Lord Salisbury, the British minister for foreign affairs. That note was written during the congressional recess, three months before congress convened, and before Mr.

Olney of law. He also maintained a keen interest in politics. In 1886 he was chairman of the county committee. He had few intimate friends, but was favored by his power of listening of men attracted by his power of leadership. In 1870 he was elected sheriff and filled the office for three years.

Items of Importance to Wisconsin People, Gleaned at Madison.

Madison.—The state railroad commission gave a hearing on the Valvoline Oil company's petition to compel railroad companies to grant stoppage in transit privileges to shippers of oil barrels. Some time ago the commission issued an order requiring the railroads to allow one stop for unloading purposes, the charge not to exceed five dollars. This would enable the oil companies to get lower rates on shipments of oil. The petitioner wants the same privilege of unloading carloads lots at several points as is now enjoyed by shippers of dressed meats and some other commodities. At the original hearing the railroads did not submit testimony, and after the ruling was announced asked for a rehearing to enable them to do so. This was granted. The Valvoline company was represented by its manager, Charles A. Douglas, and its attorney, Harry L. Potter. The railroads were represented by several of their freight officials and, Special Agent William Ellis and Attorneys Fred C. Ellis, Thomas H. Gill and S. A. Lynde.

BOLT SETS WOMAN AFIRE

Kellnersville Woman With Little Daughter Narrowly Escapes Death.

Kellnersville.—Seated on the porch at her home in Kellnersville, Mrs. Frank Novacek had a narrow escape from death by burning when her clothing was set on fire by a bolt of lightning which rendered her 5-year-old daughter, who was at her side, unconscious. The child was revived after several hours and will live. A large wedding party at the Novacek home was seized by panic and in the excitement two women fainted and one was injured by being trampled under foot by the crowd. The same bolt, or another at the same time, struck a wire fence near the house, wrecked a wire fence, throwing the planks in all directions and splitting some of the timbers. A piece of board struck Frank Novacek, a neighbor, who, with his wife, was passing in a carriage and the horse, struck on the flank by a splinter, started to run away. Mrs. Menich is ill from the shock, but Menich escaped without hurt.

ENGINEER SAVES BOY IN RIVER

Fishing From Bridge, Falls Into Stream When Train Approaches.

Fond du Lac.—J. A. Tynan, engineer of the Wisconsin Central, who resides at North Fond du Lac, is a hero. When the locomotive with Tynan at the throttle was drawing near a bridge that spans Mud Creek, near Hilbert Junction, a boy was seen on the middle of the bridge fishing. Confused by the roar of the train the little fellow became panic stricken and jumped or fell from the bridge into the river. Engineer Tynan stopped his engine, leaped into the river and after a struggle brought the lad to the bank. Tynan, when he reached North Fond du Lac was inclined to make light of the occurrence, but members of the train crew were enthusiastic in praise of him.

BIG FIRE RAGES IN OCONTO.

Half a Million Cedar Poles, and Shingles and Posts Destroyed.

Oconto.—One of the fiercest fires that has visited Oconto in many years broke out in the Pendleton & Gilkey cedar yard. The fire started east of the pickle factory and, fanned by the high wind, soon spread through the entire yard. It is estimated that about 500,000 poles, besides a large number of cedar shingles and posts, have been destroyed, together with two box cars and one flat car standing on the side track. The supposition is that the fire started from a spark from the mill, which started up in the morning to saw posts. The two mills belonging to the firm, one of which is almost in the path of the fire, were saved by hard work. The entire yard was burning. The strong wind made it difficult for the firemen to work.

ROUND THE CAPITAL

Information and Gossip Picked Up Here and There in Washington.

Many Holdups on Tag Day in Capital

WASHINGTON.—Every man on the streets here on June 13 wore a tag by a string from his buttonhole. It was a plain cardboard tag such as the express companies use, and it did not add to the appearance of one's dress, but it saved money and a holdup to wear it. June 13 was tag day in Washington. Tag day was a device to squeeze dimes and quarters out of every pedestrian for the benefit of a castoff children's playground. It was a pretty mean man who would not hand out a dime at least once for a tag. It was an excessively high-toned or reckless one who would not wear it. No dime, no tag. No tag, no peace. The holdup of wearers of untaxed coats occurred every 25 feet. Something like $7,000 was realized as a result of the "holdups" for the playground.

Children peddled the tags in all parts of the city, and no man escaped. There were store tags, house tags, automobile tags, cab tags and personal tags and a five-dollar tag that made the owner immune from attack in all quarters. The store tag cost a dollar, likewise the house tag. Every woman was held up in every store, and it cost her a dollar to continue her round of shopping without further solicitation. President Roosevelt came across for a five-dollar tag that allowed him to take his customary drive on horseback without being held up at the bridge. Attorney General Bonaparte was tagged twice. A beautiful young woman held him boldly in front of the White House Friday, which was a day, in advance of official time for the freebooting. He dug up a round dollar cheerfully and said it was worth it. But he forgot the tag when he sauntered out Saturday, and he had to shell out again.

Young Quentin Roosevelt made a street record. He stood in front of his schoolhouse and took $9.20 in an hour peddling ten-cent tags. Then he moved down to the Mall before the White House, where he suspected money would come in bigger pieces, but he was lashed to the mast there in no time after two automobiles drove up filled with daintily clad girls, who piled out and worked the thoroughfare and White House grounds to a finish. The girls then ventured into the sacred precincts of the White House and sought Mr. Loeb, but could not find him. Learning that he, like the president, was exempt, they left, by virtue of the five-dollar tag, complimentary tags for both just for luck.

Next the bevy of young beauty as-sailed the Riggs National bank and held up every one from the president down.

Mrs. Meyer Rouses Feminine Tempest

CAN American society affairs be conducted along lines laid down by the European nobility?

Mrs. George von Lengert Meyer, wife of the postmaster general, has been doing some experimenting the past season.

Resenting the free and easy custom of everybody and anybody visiting the cabinet homes, Mrs. Meyer has attempted to introduce foreign methods as regards calling and the general program.

Not since Mrs. Lovi P. Morton drew such a line of distinction between accidental official position and hereditary social standing has Washington been so wrought up as over Mrs. Meyer's haughty attitude toward the wives of cabinet officers and other men in public life.

Mrs. Meyer's treatment of wives of members of congress has caused no end of criticism. She inaugurated the habit of asking women from the far west or the south of the

A BOTTLE BETWEEN THEM.
There is no better evidence of a good feeling in the family than the division between husband and wife of the contents of the same bottle of medicine. As the old soldiers used to say of an old comrade, "We drank out of the same canteen."
Here is a case in point:
"I bought a bottle of your GOSS for my wife who was suffering with rheumatism. She used one-half bottle and is entirely cured. I took the balance of the bottle for a tonic and blood purifier and found it to do all that is claimed for it."

For President—

For Vice-President—
JAS. S. SHERMAN, of New York.

Be careful on the 4th and you won't have to say "I didn't know it was loaded."

General Bragg says that Bryan talks too much. Thanks for informing us, General.

Now for a Taft-Sherman Club.
Let every good republican in Rhinelander become a member.

Nomination papers for Congressman E. A. Morse are being circulated.
Up to this time no opposition has arisen.

In a signed statement appearing in the Milwaukee papers Tuesday, Isaac Stephenson announced himself as a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate.

A Brooklyn man died leaving his fortune to a bartender. This is not so very strange—there are many men filling pauper's graves because they did the same thing.

Teddy Roosevelt Jr. has become a laboring man and entered the employ of the United States Steel corporation. For fear that papa might class him as an "understrapper citizen" he will probably not join the union.

Be careful about writing on the contents of a package that is mailed as merchandise or printed matter, or enclosing any written matter in these packages. The postal authorities are on the lookout for violations of the postal rules in this respect and the penalty of ten dollars will be enforced in all cases. Your package may be opened at any time it is in the hands of the postoffice employees and its contents inspected. It will pay you to rather save your future trouble to comply with the law.

The Republican convention has been adjourned less than two weeks and still the excitement is over. We are not prepared to say that the work could have been better when we examine it from all points of view.

The United States constitution is the result of compromise. President Roosevelt is a "progressive" and Secretary Taft is his choice for president.
The great secretary is a scholarly, broad minded man with a great experience in public affairs. The conservatives are pleased with the nomination of James S. Sherman for vice president. Mr. Sherman has been a representative in congress for eight-teen years and is chairman of the rules committee. He is a personal friend of Mr. Cannon who enthusiastically seconded his nomination.

The platform is conservative from the Wisconsin standpoint but progressive when we think of the work of the convention of four years ago. Surely a republican could gain nothing by supporting the democratic ticket.
That was tried when Mr. Cleveland was elected in 1892 and nothing good came from it. The members of congress refused to carry out the party platform and President Cleveland in trying to force the issue, was left without a party. For fifty years progress has been made by the republican party and not by the democrats.
If Bryan were elected, it would be impossible to accomplish anything toward progress. Were he to do all he could, the incongruous elements making up his party would get together on nothing. It behooves the voter to stay within the republican party to elect the ticket and make all the strides possible to push forward the important issues. We have the strongest proof it cannot be done outside the republican party.

DISOLVES PARTNERSHIP.

The firm of Carling & Jewett, proprietors of the well known jewelry and music store on Brown street, has dissolved partnership. The deal was completed yesterday whereby Mr.
Carling disposed of his interests in the business to H. L. Jewett. Mr.
Carling has not yet made any arrangements for the future. He will continue to make his residence in Rhinelander. Mr. Jewett, who will hereafter manage the business is one of the best known business men of the city. Under his management the store will no doubt continue to receive the large trade which it has always had in the past.

HICKS FOR JULY.

July's first week will be a period of great magnetic and electric unrest, with a reactionary storm period, central between the 4th and 6th of the month, according to the prediction of I. R. Hicks, weather prophet and almanac-maker. The storm period will be near the 5th or 6th, and the "crisis of electric excitation" will fall on the 6th, according to Mr. Hicks. Then, it is predicted, will come a period of coolness, followed by a regular storm period, from the 9th to the 13th of the month.

A reactionary storm period is promised to become central on the 10th and 17th of the month, with much warmer and scattering, light rains. The regular storm period is to be between the 19th and 24th, with threatening storm clouds and windstorms between the 21st and 24th. The grain belts, while they may have ugly storm clouds, thunder and high winds will most likely suffer a shortage in rainfall, says the prediction.

From the 24th to the 27th the weather is to become cooler and more pleasant, but a reactionary storm period is to set in by the 27th, becoming central within three days thereafter.

One of the most intense hot waves of the summer is scheduled to occur, culminating about the 28th, if the change to cooler does not appear generally between the 24th and 27th.

Gifts, just as things about your home, that are unordinary are most appreciated.

EDGAR ALLAN POE

THE FIRST MEMORIAL ERECTED TO CHARLES DICKENS IN LONDON

VIRGINIA CLEMM POE

POE'S COTTAGE AT FORDHAM, NEW YORK

Americans who deplore the fact that the memory of Poe has not been duly honored in a conventional way may extract a grain of comfort from the thought that it was not until last summer (1907) that the first memorial to Dickens was erected in London. Despite the great love of Englishmen, and especially of Londoners, for Dickens, it was nearly 40 years after his death—1870—before a memorial of any kind was erected to his memory in the British capital. This memorial is a simple portrait bust, with a bronze tablet, and was placed upon the site of Furnival's Inn, Holborn. It was at Furnival's Inn that Dickens wrote "Pickwick," and it was there, in a little room on the third floor, that he awoke one morning, in 1836, to find himself famous.

Poe's failure of election to the Hall of Fame is another very real grievance to many of his countrymen, but a parallel, in a way, to this situation, too, may be found overseas. Last November the authorities of the British museum undertook to select 19 names as the greatest and most representative in English literature to be painted on 19 panels in the reading room of the British museum. It was no easy task, but the names finally settled upon by the trustees of the museum were: Chaucer, Caxton, Tindale, Spenser, Shakespeare, Bacon, Milton, Locke, Addison, Swift, Pope, Gibbon, Wordsworth, Scott, Byron, Carlyle, Macaulay, Tennyson and Browning.

This selection, of course, by no means met with universal commendation. On the contrary, loud cries of complaint and inquiry were heard from all over the country as soon as it was announced. Where was Dickens? Where was Thackeray? Where was Robert Burns? Where were Dryden, Johnson and Burke?—and, to continue: Where were Fielding, Shelley, Blake, Richardson, Butler and Ruskin? And where, asked George Bernard Shaw, in a stern and wrathful tone, was Bunyan?

Thus we see that other national households besides our own have trouble in arranging their literary treasures to suit all the members of the family.

No one, perhaps, could speak with more authority on the subject of Poe than the late Mr. Edmund Clarence Steadman, himself a poet, the writer of a delightful life of Poe, and one of the hundred electors to the Hall of Fame. In the August number of the North American Review he said: "If the vote for Cooper gave cause for wonder, what of the insufficient tally score for Poe, whose names probably will never cease to be vexed by a willing class of followers, but concerning whose place in imaginative literature the world at large has not the slightest doubt? As a writer, he was among the first to recognize the powers of Hawthorne; both were idealists, and if one produced no sustained romances like 'The Scarlet Letter,' the other gave voice to no lyric melodies such as 'Israel' and 'The Haunted Palace.' These artistic, beauty-haunted compeers were twin spirits in their nineteenth century constellations. And as for the matter of renown—a place in the Hall of Fame—what is fame? On your conscience, fellow judges, whether you are realists or dreamers, jurists, scholars or divines, may some slight regard to that voice of the outer world, which one of our own writers termed the verdict of 'a sort of contemporaneous posterity,' note that there is scarcely an enlightened tongue into which Poe's lyrics and tales have not been rendered—that he is read and held as a distinctive genius, in France, Spain, Germany, Italy, Russia, Scandinavia—that the spell of his art is felt wherever our own English speech goes with the flags of his two great overlords, France and America. Poe is a name that is still unconsciously of Poe's fame?

"Not hear? When noise was everywhere? It tolled increasing like a bell."

"Those who have given their votes for Franklin and Hamilton surely have not demurred on ethical grounds to one against whom no charge of immorality can be made, seeing that his life, like his handiwork, was chaste as moonlight. That he was poor and headstrong is true; but what of all this beside the gift that made of him a congenial victim of an abnormal craving for stimulants, now accounted for by his crystallization of our inchoate taste and for the recognition which his poetry and romance did so much to gain for the literary product of his native land."

Charles Frederic Stansbury in an article on Poe's life in Tidewater Virginia (in the Jamestown Magazine), written apropos of the Jamestown exposition, says:

"Virginia is, likewise, proud of Poe. His memory has been vindicated by the fine old university where he was a student, and the would-be assassins of his character have been silenced forever. There were all too many of these vultures, the chief of whom was the unspeakable Griswold, the ghostly standard-bearer, destined like the tombstone of ancient Egyptian, to live forever by lasting infamy, his dishonored name dragging after that of the brilliant genius, to emulate the work of whom is the despair of great minds and the confusion of little ones."

"The exquisite bronze bust of Poe, which adorns the University of Virginia, was modeled by the famous sculptor, George Julian Zolnay. It is probably the most sympathetic and beautiful portrait of the poet extant. It was brought into existence through the efforts of Prof. Charles W. Kent of the University of Virginia. Many lives of Poe have been written, and few can remember the names of the writers; Poe's name was not thought worthy to grace the alleged Hall of Fame, while nobody can remember whose names were thought to be thus worthy. Many a hardened toper on reading the many pharisaical biographies of Poe, is highly shocked at the stories of his occasional intemperance on which those writers love to dwell. Griswold started it, and the rest of the sorry pack followed in full cry. An excerpt from Augustine Birrell's essay on Charles Lamb might well apply to Poe. With the scorn this writer says: 'Lamb was rich in all that makes life valuable or memory sweet. But he used to get drunk. This explains all, be untruthful, unfaithful, unkind; darken the lives of all who live under your shadow, rob yourself of joy, take peace from age, live unsought for, die unmourned—and remaining sober, you will escape the curse of men's pity and be spoken of as a worthy person."

When Maarten Maartens visited New York city last summer to attend the peace conference one of the first things he touched on in an interview (in the New York Times) on literary matters was the subject of Poe. He said:

"Can you tell me where Poe is buried? I scarcely expected the answer I have been indulging for over since I landed. He is buried somewhere, isn't he? and he is your great writer, isn't he? The greatest interest attaches, if one might judge from the controversy which rages to this day, to the cause and manner of his death, but apparently no one knows or cares where his body lies or can direct the foreign pilgrim whither to repair to render his meed of reverence."

Mr. Steadman's judgment is C. S. confirmed—indeed, more than confirmed. It is strongly emphasized by Mr. Maartens, who places Poe at the head of American men of letters. Let us now listen to a voice from England; that of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who said of Poe in a recent article in an English (Cassell's) magazine:

"I have said that I look upon Poe as the world's supreme short story writer. His nearest rival, I should say, was Maupassant. The great French never rose to the extreme force and originality of the American, but he had a natural power, an inborn instinct towards the right way of making his effects, which mark him as a great master. He produced stories because it was in him to do so as naturally and as perfectly as an apple tree produces apples. What a fine, sensitive, artistic touch it is! How easily and delicately the points are made!"

Poe was proud of being a Virginian. In 1841 he wrote to a friend in Baltimore: "I am a Virginian—at least I call myself one, for I have resided all my life, until within the last few years, at Richmond."

Another writer, Mr. Charles L. Moore, invites attention to Poe's merits as a "tone-painter." In an article in the Dial, Most epic and great works of fiction, he thinks, have no trace of tone—the region of tone being the drama, the lyric and the prose story. Hamlet begins with a tone picture, the scene on the platform at Elsinore, hardly equalled in Shakespeare. Continuing Mr. Moore says:

"With, of course, other immense inferiorities, Poe cannot come into comparison with Shakespeare in variety of tone. Shakespeare's different pieces are keyed to all the notes of color, from obnoxious black to the purest gold of sunlight. Poe keeps in the main in the dark side of the spectrum. But within his range there are great differences in shade and always absolute certainty of effect. Consider the varieties of tone in the grave, somber colors of 'The Fall of the House of Usher,' the restless brilliancy of 'The Masque of the Red Death,' and the sober, ordered daylight of 'Landon's Cottage'; or the range between the tangible shadows of 'Ulalume,' the rich gloom of 'The Raven,' and the faceted sparkle of 'The Hound of the Baskin's.' The modern world of letters has malin-

Standards, evidently, have changed since Emerson referred to Poe as "that single man." Alluding to this disparaging comment Dr. H. G. Wells, the English novelist and writer on sociology, said at a dinner in Boston: "I think hardly of your New England writers for their contempt of Poe. I shall never be able to forget that Emerson called him 'that single man.' Today a thousand read Poe where one reads Emerson, and not to know Poe's work is rather a disgrace."

Rupert Taylor, LL. B., in a recently printed 'Study of Edgar Allan Poe,' has this to say of Poe's private life: "Poe took pleasure in the softer influences of home life, although there is little or no reflection of it in his writings. He dearly loved his wife and her mother, of whom he speaks in an excellent sonnet addressed to her after the death of his wife, as 'more than mother.' In the 'Black Cat' he gives evidence of a fondness for domestic pets. His cottage at Fordham was beautified by vines and flowering plants, and he kept in cages several singing birds and tropical birds of plumage. He was as all who knew anything about the matter attested on every occasion a devoted and model husband."

People in general are so accustomed to regard Poe as a poet and short story writer that they fail to realize that he was also a profound speculative thinker. In an article entitled "Poe as an Evolutionist" (Popular Science Monthly, September) Mr. Frederic Drew Bond points out that in estimating his character too little attention is bestowed on this phase of his work. He finds that Poe entertained in his broad outlines that idea of the changes and development of the world which goes, nowadays, by the name of the theory of evolution. On February 3, 1848, Poe delivered, as a lecture at the Society Library of New York, an abstract of his speculations on the material and spiritual universe—its essence, origin, creation, present condition and destiny. Short afterward this was published by Putnam under the title 'Eureka.' Poe did not set himself to write copy-book maxims of morality, but the total effect of his work is that of lofty and noble. His men are brave and his women are pure. He is the least vulgar of mortals. Perhaps, if books have any effect at all, his tend to make men too truthful, too sensitive, too high-minded."

"The statement of Poe that 'heterogeneousness, brought about directly through condensation, is proportional with forever,' appears to contain the germ of Herbert Spencer's developed formula: 'Evolution is a change from an indefinite, incoherent homogeneity to a definite, coherent heterogeneity through continuous differentiations and integrations.' Noteworthy, also, is Poe's statement of the correlation between mental development and physical organization."

After a thorough investigation and consideration of Poe's theory Mr. Bond concludes that:

"In its important features, 'Eureka' is a perversion of the modern doctrine of evolution. In the statements that the universe is in a perpetual flux, that it is now evolving and will in the future dissolve, that it has developed from a condition of homogeneity, and that our own system sprang from a nebula, Poe is in accord with the Spencerian philosophy and very probably with the actual facts; while in the assertions that the earth has, during successive geological ages, produced a higher and higher organic life characterized by an ascending development of mind, hand in hand with an increasing complexity of the physical organization, he is stating what are now known to be simple scientific facts. Erroneous, of course, the details of his conceptions very frequently are; but this is common to him with the pioneers of every great idea. Only in the course of time does the germ of truth attain its full growth and reveal its true character. To criticize 'Eureka' from a contemporary standpoint would be as beside the mark as to treat the 'Naturphilosophie' of Schelling or of Hegel in the same way. It was a remark of John P. Kennedy, Poe's old friend, that the latter 'wrote like an old Greek philosopher' and any one who reads the fragments of the Greek thinkers before Aristotle can easily verify for himself the truth and aptness of the statement. The merits of Poe, in common, more or less, with the other pre-Spencerian evolutionists lie in how far and how truly his genius enabled him to divide the mode of development of the universe.

"It is innumerable that 'Eureka' had any influence in preparing the way for the reception of evolutionary ideas, a little later; at the most such influence must have been of the slightest. For though his work was early translated into foreign languages, the failure to find fitting recognition of its true character, and the general obscurity in which it has lain, seems to preclude such a likelihood. Its interest lies in the light it throws on its author and in the honorable place it assigns him in that long line of thinkers from Thales to Darwin."

The statue, then, of Edgar Allan Poe, 60 years after, is as follows:

Mr. Edmund Clarence Steadman finds that Poe "is read and held as a distinctive genius in France, Spain, Germany, Italy, Russia, Scandinavia—that the spell of his art is felt wherever our own English speech goes with the flags of its two great overlords."

Mr. Maarten Maartens declares that Poe is "at the head of American literature," and "that Europe is quite agreed, as it has been from the first, in recognizing the overshadowing genius of Edgar Allan Poe."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle looks upon Poe "as the world's supreme short story writer," whose "nearest rival was Maupassant."

Charles Frederic Stansbury pronounces Poe "a brilliant genius to emulate the work of whom is the despair of great minds and the confusion of little ones."

Mr. Charles L. Moore tells us that "Poe was the least vulgar of mortals," and that "the total effect of his work is that of loftiness and nobility."

Miss Myrtle Reed says that Poe "fought bravely against cruel odds," "Mr. Rupert Taylor finds that Poe was 'on every occasion a devoted and model husband.'"

Mr. Frederic Drew Bond points out that Poe "had a prevision of the doctrine of evolution," and that "he is entitled to an honorable place in that long line of thinkers from Thales to Darwin."

This, then, is the testimony, on direct examination, of the year 1907 in the case of Edgar Allan Poe versus those electors to the Hall of Fame who have, so far, withheld from him their votes.

Gentlemen, the defense rests.

lived under the British flag. In 1680 the flag of New England was white, charged with St. George's cross in red surmounted with the crown. In the center was inscribed Jacobus Rex. While Manhattan was in possession of the Dutch the ships waved a flag on which was a beaver, the then insignia of the New Netherlands. 1707 the colonies adopted the Union Jack of Great Britain. This was formed by a combination of St. Andrew's and St. George's crosses, and of course was typical of the fact that the two countries had become one when Queen Elizabeth died and the Scottish king succeeded to the English throne.

At the time of our revolt from British authority the Union Jack was in general use, usually bearing some patriotic motto of which "Liberty and Union" was the favorite. Directly after the battle of Lexington a new flag was improvised with the motto of the state of Connecticut, viz., "Qui transiit altum sustinet." This soon gave way to regimental colors, each being distinctive in shade. At Bunker Hill a blue flag was chosen to designate New England troops—the first sign we see of union in the colonial army. This flag had St. George's cross in one corner. It was growing beautifully less within our limits and soon afterwards disappeared when Gen. Putnam displayed a red banner on Prospect hill with the motto "An Appeal to Heaven." The colony of Massachusetts sent out crusaders in the spring, supplying each with a white flag on which was painted a green pine tree. When armed vessels were commissioned in Washington they were furnished with flags of similar kind.

To Col. William Moultrie of South Carolina is due the honor of raising the first republican flag. It had a white crescent on a blue ground. This was unfurled on the east bastion of the fortress in Charleston harbor, June 28, 1776, while on the opposite side waved the flag called the "Great Union."

June 14, 1777, the Continental congress, realizing the inappropriateness of longer using British colors, resolved "that the flag of the 13 United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The first national flag after this pattern was made by a Mrs. Ross, a lady of Philadelphia. She had some distinguished men to assist her, among whom were Benjamin Franklin and Gen. Joseph Reed. We are not informed whether these men, appointed by congress for the purpose, used the thimble, needle and thread that the lady herself employed. From her general character it is probable that Mrs. Ross declined to let them "boast the job," and proceeded in her own way.

The 13 stars of the flag of 1777 were arranged in a circle, although there was no officially prescribed form. In 1791, after the admission of Vermont and Kentucky into the union, it was resolved by congress that from and after March 1, 1795, "the flag of the United States be 15 stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be 15 stars, white, in a blue field."

No provision was made by this act for future alterations, nor were any changes made till 1818, although a number of new states were admitted meanwhile into the union. On April 4 of that year a bill embodying the suggestions of Capt. Samuel G. Reid, who recommended the reduction of the stripes to the original 13 and the adoption of stars equal to the number of the states, formed into one large star, and a new star to be added on the fourth of July next succeeding the admission of each new state, was approved by President Monroe, and the flag thus established was afterward hoisted on the hall of representatives.

OH, YES, MY GREAT-GREAT GRANDFATHER SIGNED THIS

OUR FLAG.

On history's crimson page, each up on the roll of fame, The story of Old Glory burns, in deathless words of flame. It is the old red, white and blue, proud emblem of the free, It is the flag that floats above our land of liberty. —Benjamin-Sutton.

The "Star-Spangled Banner" is generally taken for granted. One seldom hears its why and wherefore called in question. With its every display in city and hamlet, on turret and hall, comes a little discussion as to its history and development.

It transpires that the American flag is, like the human species, a thing of evolution. This is so, indeed, with the insignia of most countries, notably of England, whose flag began with old King Edward's dragon upon which was incorporated the three Norman lions of William the Conqueror. When Edward III, aspired to the crown of France he added the fleur-de-lis. James I. dispensed with both and adopted St. George's cross and finally in 1801 the "Union and the Union" began their long fight for the crown, which has since continued on canvas, in every latitude of the world.

The colonies, of course, lived under the British flag. In 1680 the flag of New England was white, charged with St. George's cross in red surmounted with the crown. KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.
Health is Worth Saving, and Some Rhineland People Know How to save it.

Many Rhinelanders people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Rhineland citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Perkins, 33 Mercer St., Rhineland, Wis., says: "I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for I know them to be a remedy worth of the endorsement of anyone who uses them. I did not have a very severe case of kidney trouble, but was at times quite miserable from a weakness of the kidneys. I also had severe headaches and a dull, languid feeling. A few weeks ago I sent to Reardon's drug store, obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and was relieved in a short time by their use of all pain and distress. Other members of my family have also used them with good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

Immigration for Wisconsin.
The publisher is just in receipt of the first issue of a publication known as the Wisconsin Homeseeker, issued by the Chicago & Northwestern Ry., for the purpose of stimulating immigration to Wisconsin and furnishing Information in regard to its natural resources.

A series of letters from settlers is published in the Homeseeker, in which these pioneers tell in an interesting way something of their experiences in establishing new homes and developing their land into profitable farms.

The North Western is desirous of securing as many more testimonials of this kind as possible. A letter from you would appeal strongly to the prospective homeseeker, and every homesteader is earnestly invited to write a letter telling of the crops, soil, climate, schools, the cost of getting a start, etc., for use in this manner, and send it to us together with the names and addresses of friends in the East who would be interested in having a copy of the "Homeseeker." Illustrated books, maps and other literature mailed to them free of charge.

Address all communications on the subject to Mr. W. B. Kalskorn, P. O. M. C. & N. W. Ry., Chicago, Ill. Jy2-It.

WILL KILL DANDELIONS.
An expert in Salt Lake City in searching for a means for rooting out the dandelion pest from lawns claims to have found the following effective:

"Two pounds of sulphate of iron was dissolved in two gallons of water. It was then poured into a spraying pump. In one place a patch of dandelions was sprayed heavily, another patch was sprayed medium, and a third patch was sprayed lightly. Inside of an hour the dandelions were burned as black as coal. The lawn grass and the clover were not touched at all and all stood as fresh as ever."

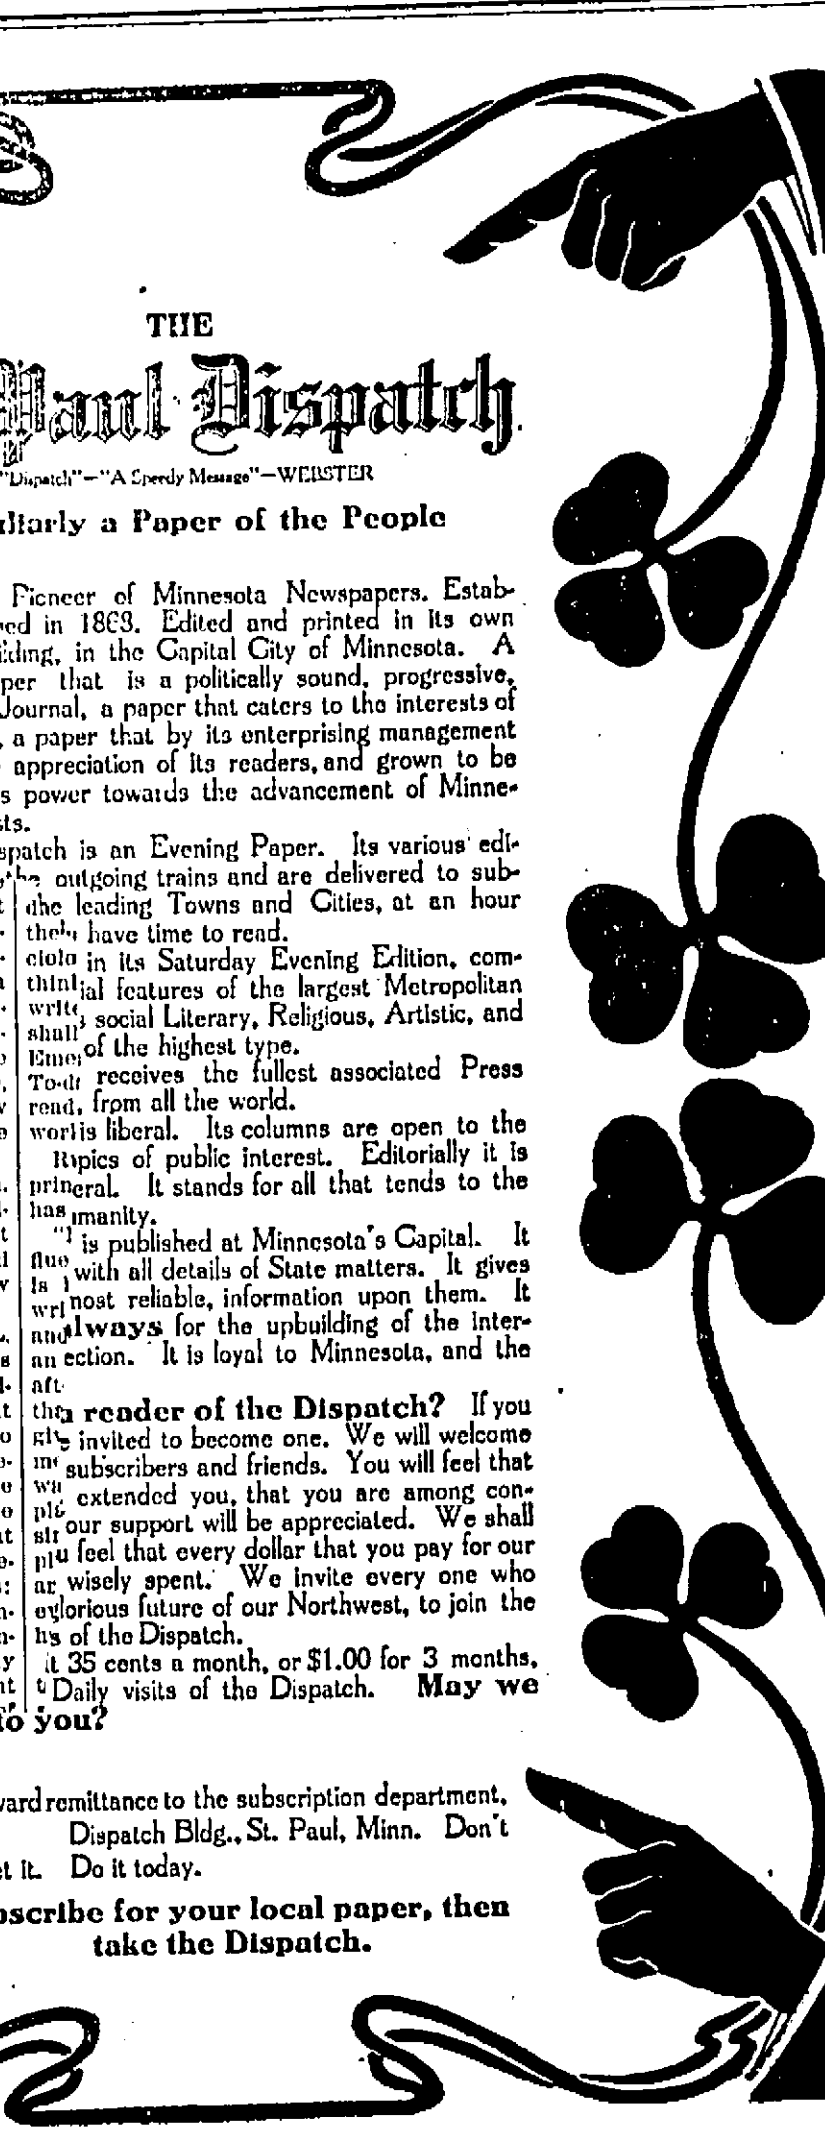

The grass was not affected where the dandelions were sprayed the heaviest.

"The dandelions were killed to the roots. The body of the roots absorbed the sulphate, and it is said the sprouts will not come up from the roots again. The grass looked brighter than any other on the lawn."

As the cost is light this is worth trying. - Ogden Journal.
